Hancock Bank buys Peoples Federal

BY ELLIS CUEVAS
Hancock Bank officials were busy Friday evening removing the signs at Peoples Federal Savings and Loan Association's Waveland branch and replacing them with Hancock Bank's.

Bay St. Louis headquartered savings association.

RTC took over Peoples Federal on February 8, 1991.

Ginn, Hancock Bank senior vice-president, said, "We have purchased the deposits of Peo-oples Federal customers of Peoples Federal have the opportunity to automatically become customers of Hancock Bank.

Seal, Hancock Bank's chief executive officer said, "We have purchased the Peoples Federal building at Waveland and have 30 days to decide about the other three buildings."

The bank's officials indicated they needed to review the other facilities before making a decision about purchasing.

As part of this transaction, Hancock Bank will assume all deposits totaling approximately $44 million.

Deposits in both banks are separately insured to the maximum limits under the law by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC). This includes depositors who have accounts in both Hancock Bank and Peoples Federal.

Peoples Federal customers

may continue using their existing checks and deposit tickets until new ones are issued.

A premium of $1,868,000 was paid to RTC by Hancock Bank, and it represents 5.1 percent of the failed institution's core deposits.

Hancock Bank will also initially purchase $37.2 million of the failed institution's assets with no putback options.

Peoples Federal had total assets of $50 million and total liabilities of $48.2 million, including $44 million in approximately 6,700 deposit accounts and $3 million in secured liabilities. Secured liabilities will not pass to the acquirer in this transaction.

Peoples Federal's core, or local retail, deposit base is estimated to be $36.9 million.

The RTC will advance an estimated $4.9 million to Hancock Bank and will retain approximately $12.8 million of "All four locations of Peoples Federal will be open on Monday and services will remain uninterrupted."

—Ginn

This was a few minutes after the board of directors of Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC), had approved the sale of Peoples Federal Savings Association, Bay St. Louis, to Hancock Bank.

A Hancock Bank release by Leo Seal Jr. and James Ginn followed RTC's and also reported the purchase of the Peoples Federal Savings Association of Bay St. Louis, and certain loans and other assets from the RTC.

Ginn, emphasized, "All four locations of Peoples Federal, two in Bay St. Louis, one at Waveland and the other at Diamondhead) will open on Monday and services will remain uninterrupted."

State commission okays dockside gambling rules

BY TRACI BONNEY

A minimum slot machine payback of 75 percent and stringent background checks on facility operators and owners are among the dockside gambling regulations tentatively adopted by the State Gaming Commission last week.

The commission has mailed copies of the 225-page set of regulations to administrative offices in those counties that have legalized dockside gambling, Deputy Gaming Commission Director Bruce Nourse said.

"For the next 30 days after the copies go out, we'll be receiving comments from the public and the operators," Nourse said. "At the end of that time, we'll compile the comments and make changes in the regulations as we see the need to do so."

Nourse and Commission Director Royal P. Walker Jr.

both said the regulations are comprehensive and "iron-tight." Nourse stated that the rules were formed and adapted from the best of those in Nevada, Illinois and Iowa.

Although the regulations do address many issues, they do not deal with such things as limitations on casino operation hours and limiting the amounts on bets.

Supervisors discuss beach renourishment

BY TRACI BONNEY

The board of supervisors got an earful of sand — sand beach renourishment discussion, that is — Thursday.

At a workshop meeting this week, the supervisors talked with Bill Mitchell, who is working with the Sand Beach Advisory Committee on the county's beach renourishment program.

The renourishment, which has been talked about and planned for many years, is a step closer to being started. The county received its state permit earlier this month, and is awaiting the issuance of the federal permit.

Mitchell said that once both permits are in hand and final details of the project are settled, the renourishment will start with the dredging of sand.

He explained that the sand will come from an offshore area in western Harrison County.

Dredging from that area will prevent a problem which caused several deaths in the past in Hancock County.

In past years, holes were formed in the floor of the gulf off Hancock County when dredging was performed for a previous sand beach project. The sudden drops into these holes caused people to panic and drown.

Mitchell said, "The dredging is safe this time. To get to the hole, a person would have to walk through a channel and past a sand bar."

Just in case people actually do get that far, Mitchell said, warning signs will be placed around the dredged area.

Mitchell and the supervisors discussed rain water drainage from Beach Blvd., a problem which has contributed to beach erosion. Mitchell said costs for replacing 20 culverts in three sections of beach — Washington Avenue, Coleman Avenue and Buccaneer Park — will add up to about $300,000.

That cost is to place the culverts from the inland side of Beach Blvd. under the road and through the seawall to the water.

Mitchell estimated a total cost for the project of about $2 million. After discussion of various aspects of the project, he said he would refine the project and give the board a more definite cost estimate.

Bay High School's principal

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Everyone is smiling at Bay High School as they prepare for the opening of the new school year.

But the biggest smile, by far, is on the face of Roger James, principal and Persian Gulf War veteran.

"When I left, I believed I would come back, but I didn't know if I would," he stated. "Now, I just want to get back into the regular rotation of

Locals honor 'those who have served'

Though the 1355th were the guest of honor, Hancock County veterans from every American war and conflict marched through the streets of Waveland Saturday to the cheers of the people they served to protect. Following the parade, everyone gathered at American Legion Post 77 in Waveland for dinner and entertainment which was provided by the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland, the county board of supervisors, civic groups, businesses, individuals and the county's veterans organizations. North the Gulf Coast after working 22 years in the Mississippi Delta. Having been born in Atlanta, Ga. and reared in Florida, he first became acquainted with Mississippi as a student at Ole Miss.

He and his family — wife Carol, daughter and two sons — moved south, attracted by the sun, sand and seafood.

"We always enjoyed the Coastal area, so we took a chance."

He explained that the move was a gamble for him since the state requires school districts to renew administrative contracts prior to the ending of a school year.

"From February until July you wait to see if there will be any job openings for the next school year."

Though North admits to not having enjoyed the anxiety created by not knowing whether he would find work in Hancock County, he does not regret the decision.

While in Saudi Arabia, North said he made several attempts to visit the schools there in order to learn about the educational system.

"I tried, but with no success. They are a very closed society. I was able to identify a few schools but I could not gain admittance."

"The boys' schools had bars around them, so you could at least see into the grounds, but the girls' schools had solid walls to block all viewing."

"They are very protective of their women. American women would not like it over there because women are treated like second-class citizens."

North laughed at the idea of an Arab-American explosion as a consequence of the Persian Gulf War.

"There was no mixing," he stated emphatically. While stationed in the Middle East, North said he discovered how much he missed working with children.

"It's a great way to make a living," he affirmed.

North explained that today's approach in education has to do with evaluating the ability of a student to master certain skills.

"Each grade level has core objectives. The students are tested to check that objectives are being met, that they know what they should know."

North feels the students today are being offered a much better education than ever in the past, especially with the use of computers early in the education.

"It is important that children are not intimidated by computers, but instead use them as a carryover for all the facts they have learned."

"You can teach a child facts, and sooner or later those facts will become outdated and there will be many new ones to learn."

"Education must be an attitude. It must encourage creativity and be open-ended."

"The American education system promotes more creative thinking. It has that going for it."

North is pleased that Gulfview will be offering the Writing to Read Program to all primary level students this year.

He spent three days this week in Moss Point being introduced to the program and its innovative approach to teaching and reinforcing basic reading and writing skills.

North said the school also received two additional computers through its Chapter I Program, which offers additional tutoring and structured study aids for the average and below-average student.

The school faculty will also be increasing with the addition of a counselor, who North believes will help tremendously the coordination of efforts between the teacher, student and parents.

North said, "Gulfview has grown so much in the past three years, from 165 students when I started to 650 students today."

"We have four first grade classes and three classes of students for every other grade from kindergarten to sixth. With a growth rate like that we need more state support."

North said the people of Mississippi have cried out for education reforms. They have urged the state to make education of their children a primary concern, and year by year state funding in education continues to be reduced.

"The legislation builds roads and takes care of everything else and education is the last thing to be funded."

"They should put education first. Fund it first from the budget and then take care of the rest of the state's needs."

"They call certain programs 'fills': music, physical education, counseling."

"If the people of Mississippi can't keep the quality of education up, then cut the days required back to 175. Every year they increase the number of days of school required."

"Do you know how much it costs to open a school for one day? By cutting back a few days we could afford to offer better programs for the students."

"What you are doing with the students during those days is important."

North's concern for the students of Gulfview stems from an obvious avocation. Parents may rest assured that he will be personally involved with each child that will enter those doors August 19.

"The teachers wrote letters and the children sent me clippings and artwork, all during the time I was in Saudi. The support of everyone at home was tremendous. We (soldiers) never felt neglected or unappreciated."

"Of course this was a different type of war. I didn't have to hold anyone dying."

"I was glad to serve and help out my county, and I'm glad to be back."

North said after their arrival in Dhahran, the 1355th was moved to an outlying area where the men were set up in tents.

As each man had a specialty within the unit, North and Bay High principal Roger James were part of the laundry and shower detail.

North was sent northeast into the desert where he served the troops along the Kuwait-Saudi front line.

"We were four months in the desert."

"We were told that the regular army unit handling the detail couldn't keep up. It was too much for them. So we went in to help and within 10 days

This day is sad and seems so long.

Another birthday passing since you are gone.
It seems so unjust since you were called away from us;
So many questions to ask, so many things to say,
Especially on your birthday.
Today we all light a candle and will sing to up above.
I know you'll hear this song, because it's a song of love.
Happy Birthday,
Your wife and family

Happy Birthday, Grandpa,
We miss you so very much.
Love,

"You know how you hear 'everybody hates Americans'? Well, the Kuwaitis appreciated us."

"The Kuwaitis are more open than the Saudis. All the Saudis do is pray."
"If it was in the middle of the dinner hour they would stop serving meals and pray. If you were in a restaurant they would hurry you out and close to pray. Even the telephones had prayer times listed on them."

"The war was really the air forces' war. The army had just gotten started when it ended for them."

"I'm really proud of all of them. They did a great job."
North expressed his personal regret that the war did not end in Baghdad, saying, "They should have let us go on ahead and finish it."

But whatever his personal opinion might be, North does add that he follows the dictates of his country.

When North arrived home with the rest of the 1355th he was surprised by the turnout of people.

"A buddy of mine on the bus with us was from Gulfport. As we were driving through Bay St. Louis he said, 'I didn't know there were this many people in Hancock County.'"

North beamed with new energy as he sat behind the long unused desk at Gulfview, or maybe the glow was from that golden tan he brought back with him from his exotic travels.

"It's not perfect here, but it's better than anything I saw over there, and I thank God every day that I was born in this country."

Charles Necaïse named animal warden

BY TRACI BONNEY

So, your neighbor's Doberman bit you? Well, put down your gun and call the sheriff's department.

Charles Necaïse, the new county animal control warden, can handle the problem.

Necaïse, one of four Necaïses who applied for the job, was named animal control warden Monday by the board of supervisors. Sheriff Ronald Peterson and Necaïse will officially begin work as soon as the results of his physical exam are given.

Necaïse is a resident of Rocky Hill and said he has worked with livestock, dogs and other animals most of his life. He has also trained horses.

His occupation prior to his appointment was that of a car transport driver.

Peterson said the department plans to send Necaïse to a training seminar for a week so he can keep abreast of the latest animal control techniques, and expects him to work directly with the Waveland Animal Shelter and the animal wardens from the two cities.

"I think it will be very effective for us to have a full-time animal control warden," Peterson commented.

In addition to dealing with pets and stray animals, Necaïse will be expected to handle cases involving horses and livestock.

The truck he will use for the job was confiscated during a recent case and awarded by the court to the sheriff's department. It has been painted and modified to equip it for transporting small animals. Trailers will be used to move larger animals.

Necaïse stated, "I'll try to do a good job. No, not 'try,' I will do a good job."

the closed institution's assets. The RTC will recover a portion of its advance through the sale of assets to be held in the receivership. The ultimate cost to the RTC of this transaction is estimated at $2.4 million.

The RTC invited 729 potential purchasers to an informational bidders' meeting on the institution. Hancock Bank's bid was determined to be the least costly of the four proposals submitted to the agency.

The RTC was established by Congress in August 1989 to contain, manage, and sell failed savings institutions and recover taxpayer funds through the management and sale of the institutions' assets.

Prior to the Peoples Federal's formation, the RTC has closed or sold 479 savings institutions and achieved asset sales and collections of more than $160 billion. Approximately 16 million insured depositors and approximately $153.8 billion in deposits have been protected by the RTC's closing of insolvent thrifts. The estimated cost to taxpayers for these transactions is $65 billion.

Hancock Bank, headquartered in Gulfport, was founded in Bay St. Louis in 1899, was recently singled out as being one of the fifty strongest, large banks in the country.

Mistaken identity is something which happens quite frequently, and I heard a good one which just happened in Bay St. Louis.

Janelle Kern, whom I have known for many years, reports that several friends thought they had seen her in an Echo photo on Page 1A in the August 4 issue.

Even her husband Joe thought she was at the Bay St. Louis workshop when he saw a copy of the photo in the paper.

Janelle says she wasn't invited and did not attend the Bay St. Louis workshop on dockside gaming.

I guess I am not the only one who has been mistakenly seen two places at one time.

Surplus equipment should be used in America

Consider the fact that Mississippi has 26 thousand miles of unpaved roads.

At a time of revenue shortfalls and when our state and local governments are in desperate need of heavy construction equipment to maintain these roads, the federal government is sending millions of dollars worth of our surplus equipment to foreign nations.

A federal surplus property sales program in the United States allows local government and non-profit agencies to buy at bargain prices equipment that the government no longer needs. Gradually, the sales program is becoming another foreign aid give-away.

Recently, the Department of Defense spent $46 million to give away property valued at $48 billion to foreign countries. A so called "Humanitarian Assistance Program" involving surplus equipment has cost the American taxpayers approximately $94 million.

The Humanitarian Assistance Program was created in 1985 to aid refugees primarily from Afghanistan and Cambodia. At first, only items such as food and clothing were sent. Later on more countries were added and surplus equipment was sent. For example, we still send the Soviet Union surplus equipment years after their devastating earthquake.

I'm all for humanitarian assistance. But quite frankly, our needs are great enough here.

Recently, I had the opportunity to personally visit a surplus property warehouse and see for myself the type, condition and quantity of equipment available to local governments. I toured the facility with members of the board of supervisors of three coastal counties to discuss buying a surplus government barge to help create artificial reefs.

The barge will cost $1,000 or less. Harrison and Hancock County informally expressed an interest and a desire to work together to buy the barge and use it to carry broken concrete and bricks into the Mississippi Sound where new reefs could be created.

Barges aren't the only equipment available to government and non-profit agencies that are looking for a real bargain. Backhoes, roller/packers, cranes, bulldozers, loaders, fire trucks, dump trucks, road graders, scraper units, tanks/tankers are some of the equipment on U.S. government surplus property lists.

We need to stop giving foreign countries first claims on surplus government equipment. American taxpayers paid for the machinery. It's only right that it be used by state and local officials.

China and MFN

As the People's Republic of China's Most-Favored-Nation status comes to debate in Congress, there are many areas that must be looked at long and hard before we decide whether or not to renew MFN with the Chinese.

Currently, the United States has three trade "categories" in which all nations are placed—MFN, non-MFN and a status for developing countries which offers extremely lax trade restrictions as the economics of these nations unfold and mature.

The large majority of all nations fall into MFN which extends to trading partners the same privileges and concessions that have been granted in negotiations to any other trading partner. As its main provision, MFN allows for imports to enter the United States at reduced tax. Only 14 nations have not been granted MFN status.

There are several strong arguments against renewing China's MFN status. The United States has a $10.4 billion trade deficit (projected to be $12 billion in 1991) with China and many feel this should be solved before we continue MFN trade.

The Persian Gulf War highlighted the risks of selling high technology weapons to unstable governments, and the Chinese sell dangerous missiles, such as silkworm and ballistic, to very radical countries, including Pakistan and possibly Libya.

There also are concerns over China's human rights record, including the Tiananmen

Square incident and the use of prison labor to produce cheap goods for overseas market.

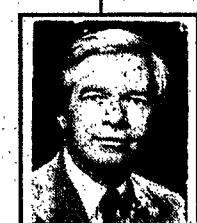

Arguments for continued MFN trade with the Chinese include China's recent attempts to improve and clean up its trade and human rights activities. Spurred by world pressure China has made some progress in these areas.

China is also the world's most populous country and a military power. To completely sever the channels of dialogue with the Chinese, which has taken many years to establish, might be too hasty a step for our own good. Through communication, problems often can be solved.

We also must consider the President's strong understanding of China. As a former U.S. ambassador to China, President Bush developed excellent skills in dealing with the Chinese and he has recommended continuation of the MFN status.

And, on the home-front, Mississippi exported almost $28 million in goods to China each year. Not trading with China would hamper some of Mississippi's business.

Deciding whether to continue MFN trade practices with China is truly one of those difficult decisions which must be looked at from all angles. However, as with all important questions, the deciding factor must be what is in the best interest of America. That is what I will base my vote on when the time comes. In the meantime, I will be listening to arguments from both sides of the issue.

Cochran hails establishment of office of rural health

U.S. Senator Thad Cochran said the federal grant to establish the Mississippi State Office of Rural Health will improve access to health care services in rural areas.

The Mississippi State Department of Health will receive a $54,457 grant from the Federal Office of Rural Health Policy to establish the new office, Cochran said.

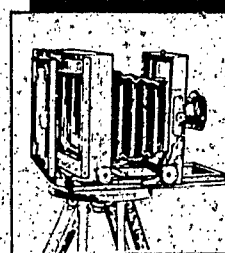

The Mississippi senator authored the legislation in the Senate to establish the State Office of Rural Health grant program in the Department of Health and Human Services.

"These funds will improve access to quality health care services in rural areas of the state by integrating state, federal and private sector rural health care activities."

The office will coordinate all state and private agencies with regard to information on rural health research, innovative approaches to rural health care, and federal and state programs which would benefit rural health care delivery, Cochran said.

"This new office will also coordinate efforts to recruit health care professionals to serve in rural areas of Mississippi," Cochran concluded.

Plans are being formulated for a $500,000 Buccaneer Park camp site development project. The state of Mississippi will match $250,000 along with the U.S. Department of Interior for the development. Creg Smith, park manager, upon learning of the grant approval, said the funds will be utilized to construct 43 camp sites which will possibly be opened to the public as early as next summer. The park presently has 104 camping areas.

Sen. Thad Cochran of Mississippi told Hancock County Chamber of Commerce members Friday night that continued high interest rates are a matter of grave concern to him and Congress.

The membership and guests will celebrate starting at 4 p.m. Friday before the usual seafood supper. Bert Stieffel, former local wholesale dealer who went to Jackson to speed processing of the papers, reported late Tuesday that Alcohol Beverage Control Division had just issued permit No. 0107 to the local club. He planned to place the booze order yesterday. Actually the first permit issued to the county—to Broadview Restaurant on U.S. 90 at Old Spanish Trail—was dated last Friday. But indications are its liquor shipment is being delayed until the county's resort area is fixed.

'Tarheel' project may pave way to recycling progress

As Mississippi continues to meet the challenges posed by disposing of wastes, someone should monitor the success of an experiment being conducted in North Carolina.

In 1989 the North Carolina Legislature passed a law that, among other things, encouraged the taking of scrap tires and finding another use for them.

Responding to that legislation, the North Carolina Transportation Department is in the process of a road-widening project that will experiment with recycled material for almost all its phases.

Along the experimental two-mile stretch of highway, embankments will be composed of a mix of soil and shredded tires.

There will be a retaining wall approximately four-tenths of a mile long made from 2,500 truck tires.

Flexible roadway delineator posts marking the lanes will be made of recycled plastic.

Part of a protective fence will have posts and rails made of recycled plastic.

The trees and limbs cut along the right-of-way will be used as mulch along the road to control erosion.

And, for a quarter of a mile, the road surface will contain a mix of finely ground tires in an asphalt paving.

DeSalvo enters supervisor's race for District 4

He attended McDonough 16 High School in New Orleans and is married to the former Deborah Rome of New Orleans. They have two children, an 18 year-old daughter and a 16 year-old son.

DeSalvo has been involved in the community for many years. He lists membership as an auxiliary volunteer with both the Hancock County Sheriff's Department and Hancock County Juvenile Department. Other memberships include the Bayside Volunteer Fire Department, the Hancock County Library System, Guiding Eye for the Blind and the Bayou Phillips Neighborhood Watch Group, of which he is president and founder.

As a private citizen DeSalvo has accomplished a great many community services. He legally fought for and won additional millage for the Bayside Volunteer Fire Department through the state water and sewerage board. He pursued the zoning of District 4 as a bird sanctuary. He obtained street and speed limit signs for the district. He helped rid garbage dumpsters and criminals from the area.

DeSalvo has supplied many residents with trained dogs for protection of self and property. He frequently assists street maintenance crews, emergency ambulances and local residents with many needs.

DeSalvo attends Board of Supervisors' meetings regularly "to keep his district informed of issues of concern, as few people can take off from work to attend."

DeSalvo wants "to see new jobs created in Hancock County and the promotion of keeping county tax dollars in the county."

He intends to "bring fire hydrants into his district for better fire protection and lower insurance premiums."

He has pledged to "donate a portion of his monthly salary for the needy."

DeSalvo says he will "work closely with county maintenance crews to keep roads and bridges safer; keep ditches and culverts clean; street corners cleared for better visibility; and see that county ordinances and codes are upheld."

"As supervisor of District 4, I am sure that I will execute the responsibility of the office with the same motivation and enthusiasm that helped to achieve my past accomplishments."

Saucier vies for Dist. 3 seat

Clifton Saucier

Clifton Saucier has announced his candidacy for Hancock County Supervisors, District Three.

"Saucier, a life-long resident of the Standard community, attended Sellers High School and graduated from Pearl River Junior College. He is married and is the father of five children.

Experience in business and administrative activities is what Saucier is offering to the voters. He has served ten years on the board of trustees of Hancock General Hospital and two years on the Hancock County Welfare Board.

Also, Saucier worked for Diamondhead Corporation for eight years, where he was in charge of construction and maintenance of streets and public grounds. Presently Saucier is active in the field of real estate development.

In particular, Saucier feels that his administrative experience and his knowledge of construction and maintenance provides the voters with a prime candidate for the supervisor position.

"I am familiar with the process and procedures required to get jobs done effectively and efficiently," he said.

Among Saucier's ideas are projects such as improving and building streets and roads; implementing a beautification program and providing better recreational services for all ages, young and old.

"However, I am very sensitive to the taxpayers' desires and understand that county tax money should be spent carefully and deliberately so as to benefit and please the entire district," he said.

Saucier believes this can be done by getting feedback from the district voters in his effort to see everyone treated equally and benefited proportionately while spending tax money wisely.

"I will be as close to you as your telephone. You can call me anytime at 255-9281," said Saucier.

Schedule for free, reduced lunches at local schools told

The State Department of Education announced the United States Department of Agriculture income guidelines for free and reduced price meals served under the school lunch, school breakfast, food distribution and child and adult care food programs.

Families with children in any of these facilities who are unable to pay the full price of the meals are encouraged to apply for benefits.

Applications and instructions for applying for meal benefits will be sent home with each student during registration or on the first day of attendance. To apply for the meal benefits, a household should fill out the application and return it to the school or center.

Additional copies of the application are available at the administrative office of each facility.

For the school/center officials to determine eligibility, the household must report income information or provide a food stamp or AFDC case number.

If the child receives AFDC payments or is a member of a food stamp household, the parent or guardian only has to provide the name of child, food stamp or AFDC case number, and sign the application.

Other applicants must report the total household income and each amount and source of income received by each household member.

In order for income applicants to be approved, the household must also provide the following on the application: the names of all household members; each household member's monthly income identified by source; the signature of an adult household member certifying that the information provided is correct; and the social security number of the adult who signs the application or an indication that this adult household member does not have a social security number.

The information provided by the household is confidential and will be used only for purposes of determining eligibility and verifying data. The information provided may be verified at any time during the year by school/center or program officials.

Households are required to report increases in household income of over $50 per month or $600 per year and decreases in household size.

Also, if a household member becomes unemployed or if the household size increases, the household should contact the school/center.

Such changes may make the children of the household eligible for reduced price or free meals if the household's income falls at or below the levels shown in the income scales. Households may apply for benefits at any time during the year as circumstances change.

In certain cases, foster children are also eligible for meal benefits. If a household has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for meal benefits for them, the household should contact the school/center for more information.

Each school/center has a copy of the approved free and reduced meal policy. The policy indicates who is responsible for determining eligibility. The determining official is, in most instances, the principal, the food service supervisor, or the center director.

Each school/center district/center has an individual named as the hearing official. Parents or guardians dissatisfied with the ruling of the determining official may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis.

Parents wishing to make a formal appeal may make a request either orally or in writing to the hearing official. The school/center office or the superintendent's office staff can provide you the name, address and phone number of the hearing official.

In the operation of child feeding programs administered by the United States Department of Agriculture, no child will be discriminated against because of race, color, sex, national origin, age or handicap. If any member of a household believes they have been discriminated against, they should write immediately to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Children from households whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced price meals.

Local participating schools are Hancock County School District, Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District, Bay St. Louis Catholic Elementary School, St. Clare School, St. Stanislaus, Methodist Children Day Care Center and Hancock County Human Resources.

Lunch box meals can be nutritious, interesting

September means back to school and for some, back to lunch box meals. Whether for children going to school or for working individuals, the lunch box meal should be just as nourishing and interesting as any other meal.

Consider the packed lunch with other meals of the day and plan accordingly to include food needs for the day.

Lunch boxes or insulated bags offer more variety than the plain sack lunch. Soups, salads and other hot or cold foods carry well in these containers.

Arrange a special place in the kitchen for lunch packing supplies such as cutting board, foil, plastic wrap, waxed paper, sandwich bags and plastic or glass containers.

For sandwiches, cut them in half for easy eating. Wrap lettuce and tomato slices separate and add to sandwich before eating.

Put mayonnaise or mustard in foil or use individual packets. Use small glass or plastic containers with tops for desserts and salads.

Include a couple of napkins. Cut fruit into wedges and wrap in plastic wrap for easy eating. Add extra crunch in separate packages—celery, carrot or pepper strips, also radishes or cucumber slices.

Most kinds of sandwiches, when properly packaged, freeze satisfactorily. Sandwich fillings may also be frozen in small containers for later use.

Fillings take less space in the freezer than the sandwiches, though the frozen sandwich saves last-minute preparation for lunch boxes and picnics. Use your own favorite recipes with some changes to adapt them to freezing.

To prepare and freeze sandwiches, keep in mind that these fillings freeze well: Cheddar cheese or cream cheese, sliced or ground meat and poultry, fish, cooked egg yolk, peanut butter and other nut pastes and olives and pickles.

These fillings do not freeze well: Raw vegetables that lose their appetizing crispness and flavor (lettuce, carrots, tomatoes, etc.) when frozen. The whites of hard-cooked eggs become tough in freezer storage.

Fruit jellies and mayonnaise and salad dressing (except when mixed with another food, like peanut butter) are likely to soak into the bread and make the sandwiches soggy. Prepare filling and assemble all needed ingredients and equipment. Use day-old bread. Spread inside of each piece of bread from edge to edge with softened butter and margarine. This helps to keep bread from absorbing moisture from filling.

Fill sandwiches. Wrap as they will be used (one or two to a package) in moisture-vapor proof material. Seal and label with kind of filling and date. Freeze immediately. Place in box to prevent crushing.

Freeze fillings instead of sandwiches if your prefer. Prepare fillings from favorite recipe with changes to adapt for freezing. Spoon into small jars or moisture-vapor proof containers leaving head space. Freeze. Thaw fillings overnight in refrigerator. Use as you would fresh fillings. Use immediately after thawing.

Thaw regular sandwiches in their original sealed wrappings. A package of two sandwiches will thaw at room temperature in from 3 to 3 1/2 hours; therefore, frozen sandwiches packed in a school lunch will be thawed by lunch time.

Sandwiches will keep 3 to 4 weeks and fillings 3 to 6 months in the freezer.

As you plan packed lunches, allow for variety. Special fruits, cookies, cupcakes and other packables keep these meals on the go from getting monotonous.

School children and adults enjoy a change and a surprise occasionally. Besides, it makes packing the lunch more interesting.

INITIAL PUBLIC HEARING

The County of Hancock, Mississippi is considering applying to the Mississippi Department of Economic and Community Development (MDECD) for a Small Cities Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) for the FY. The State of Mississippi has been allocated approximately $29 million on a competitive basis to undertake eligible community development activities. These funds must be used for one of the following purposes.

1. To benefit low and moderate income persons;
2. To aid in the prevention or elimination of slums or blight; or
3. To meet other community development needs having a particular urgency because existing conditions pose a serious and immediate threat to the health or welfare of the community where other financial resources are not available to meet such needs.

The activities for which these funds may be used are in the area of housing, public facilities and economic development. More specific details regarding eligible activities, program requirements, maximum grant sizes and the rating system will be provided at a public hearing which will be held at the Court House Friday, August 16, 1991 at 5:30 p.m.

The purpose of this initial public hearing will be to obtain citizen input into the development of the CDBG application. Written comments are welcome and should be submitted to the County Court House no later than six calendar days after the initial hearing.

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy
McGuire Caire

If you think that you have to buy a beef tenderloin or sirloin or such, as the only way that to ensure a juicy, tender roast, you'll be happily surprised at some of the specially-priced offerings at area meat counters this week. These other cuts of meat can be every bit as tender and flavorful as the more expensive cuts.

Roasts such as rump, chuck, brisket and eye-of-round are generally believed to be less tender than tenderloin or sirloin, as they are leaner and haven't as much marbling (the layers of fat evenly distributed through the meat). This is what makes the meat juicy-tender and full of flavor when cooked.

But, if you make up for this lack of marbling by braising, the resulting roast will be moist and tender, and ever so tasty. Braising, or "pot roasting" is just cooking the roast in a small amount of liquid, covered, for a good period of time, over low heat.

So, on to the meat counters with the household budget in mind! Rump roasts are offered at good prices, as are bottom round boneless roasts (and steaks as well), and whole boneless briskets (10 to 12 lb. average) are especially low priced; so buy "big," cut into portions and use as you will. And there's always the old reliable beef chuck roast and also the "7-steaks." Round steaks are also in good supply.

Rump roast is tasty in:
POT ROAST
1 (4 lb. or a little less) boneless rump roast.
2 Tbsp. vegetable oil
1/2 cup water

1/2 tsp. beef flavored bouillon granules (optional)
1/2 tsp. coarse-ground pepper, salt as desired

1 bay leaf
2 onions, quarters
2 carrots, scraped and cut into pieces
2 Tbsp. all-purpose flour
3 Tbsp. water
1 (8 oz.) carton commercial sour cream

Hot cooked noodles
Brown roast on all sides in hot oil in a large Dutch oven. Combine 1/2 cup water and bouillon granules (or broth) and add to pot. Add bay leaf, pepper and salt, cover, and reduce heat. Simmer for 2 1/2 hours. Add onion and carrot, cover and cook 30 minutes or until vegetables and meat are tender.

Remove roast and vegetables from Dutch oven and keep warm. Remove bay leaf and discard. Combine flour and 3 tablespoons water and stir into pan drippings. Cook, stirring constantly, until gravy is smooth and thickened. Add sour cream and vegetables to gravy, stirring constantly, until thoroughly heated.

Place cooked noodles on a serving platter. Slice the roast, and arrange over noodles. Serve with gravy. (6 to 8 servings)—from "Southern Living" magazine files. (I have used yogurt in place of the sour cream; but you have to be extra-careful in stirring in and heating, so that it doesn't curdle.)

And, for the leftovers, if any, that's a good feature of cooking a roast, you've a head start on another meal! Try:

STEAK (OR ROAST SLICES) IN RED WINE AND MUSHROOM CREAM
1 Tbsp. butter
1 tsp. oil
1/3 cup finely chopped onion
1 cup sliced mushrooms (I prefer fresh)
1 tsp. crumbled dried thyme

1/2 cup red wine (or 1/4 cup red wine plus 1/4 cup beef broth)

1/3 cup heavy cream
1 tsp. Dijon Mustard
10 thin slices cooked steak or roast beef (1/4-inch thick)

2 Tbsp. chopped fresh parsley, groundings of black pepper
In medium saucepan, heat half the butter and the oil, over moderate heat. Add mushrooms and thyme and stir. Raise heat to high and add red wine or wine and broth, and bring to boil.

Reduce heat and let simmer 2 minutes. Then add the cream and simmer 3 to 5 minutes, or until slightly thickened. Stir in mustard. Meanwhile, in large skillet, heat remaining butter over moderate heat, and saute steak or roast slices 30 seconds each side, or until warmed through. Sprinkle generously with pepper and place hot steak or roast slices on platter. Spoon sauce on top and sprinkle with parsley. (2 or more servings)—from "Redbook magazine" food files. If someone else shows up, you can stretch the servings with hot cooked rice!

If beef isn't your pan-of-meat these days, you may opt for the pork roasts or chops, or baking hens or chicken breast or leg quarters, among other choices. Don't neglect the seafood choices, either, or the specials on-ground beef and ground turkey, for quick and easy summertime meals.

DID YOU KNOW?

- Bay St. Louis charges each household for garbage pick up. That fee goes into city funds.
- Waste management charges Hancock County four thousand dollars per month for this garbage to be placed into Waste Management Land Fill. The same is true in the City of Waveland—two thousand two hundred dollars per month.
- Are we being ripped off?
- Flooded yards and streets, blind intersections, uncut bushes on street ditches, mud holes at mail boxes, pot holes in streets.
- Wasted money on pea gravel that does not last on dirt streets. Worn out equipment.

Board OKs barge removal

BY TRACI BONNEY

The county board of supervisors approved Monday the signing of an emergency contract to remove two barges from a channel at the Port Bienville Industrial Park.

At the request of Port and Harbor executive director Harold "Buz" Olsen, the board authorized the signing of a contract with The Main Deck of Ocean Springs to remove two barges that have been submerged for 10 years. Olsen said the barges are preventing Gulf Coast Fabrication from building a dry dock for the Corps of Engineers.

The board briefly discussed enlarging the removal costs to Marine Concrete Structures, the company that owns the barges, but board attorney Gerald Gex said that company is bankrupt.

The board appointed Charles Necaise of Rocky Hill as the county's full-time animal control warden.

The board appointed Necaise with a 4-1 vote. He was one of four applicants for the job, all Necaises.

In preparation for upcoming county primary elections, the board approved the temporary relocation of the Waveland East voting precinct.

The board voted to move the precinct from the Waveland Civic Center a few feet away to the Waveland library while the Civic Center is closed for renovation, rewiring and other repairs.

John Scaffide with the county planning commission and Sue Chamberlain of South Mississippi Planning and Development District presented draft copies of a proposed county zoning plan to the board. Chamberlain asked for a meeting with the board to discuss the plan, and the board set an August 28, 6 p.m., meeting time.

Scaffide asked for and received board acceptance of a replat of Leisure Time Park subdivision in Diamondhead. Scaffide said the replat was done because some of the original survey work was found to be inaccurate.

Paul and Mary Ann Cleveland of Bay Side Park complained to the board about ditches in their subdivision that they say have needed cleaning since 1988. Pictures revealed saplings growing in some of the ditches.

Maintenance superintendent Sam Cuevas said the backhoe was in use in Pearlington, but he expected to be able to send it to Bay Side Park next week.

The Clevelands thanked the board, but said they would attend the August 15 meeting to complain further if the work was not done by then.

The board approved payroll and the claims docket, opened, took under advisement, and gave provisional approval of low bids for culverts, office and janitorial supplies, grader blades and hot bituminous pavement.

At the end of the meeting, the board adjourned to August 15, 9 a.m.

James

things and do the very best job we can."

James is a native of Hancock County and the Bay St. Louis area.

He has worked in the Bay-Waveland School District since 1965 and has been principal of Bay High School for four years.

James said he began as a teacher and gradually worked his way into an administration position.

At the end of this year, James will have 20 years of service accumulated with the military. He served in the regular Army for three years in the early 1960s when he was stationed in Germany. Ten years later he joined the National Guard, picking up those earlier years as accumulated time toward his retirement.

He and his wife have four children: a 31-year-old daughter, a 24-year-old son and twin daughters, age 18.

"I was glad to get home to them," he said.

James said his experiences in the Middle East have caused him to have a better outlook on life and more appreciation for his family.

"I'll not take so much for granted, now. I want to do more with my family, not hurry through life."

"School is a great part of it, but I don't want it to be my total life anymore."

"It is important to me that I'm there for my family. The Lord has been good to us and there might not be a tomorrow. I guess I never thought about that before."

James, like Gulfview principal Donald North, worked in a laundry and shower detail of the 1355th unit.

After arriving in Dhahran with the 1355th, James said, the company was broken into details and moved to various sites where they could service the surrounding troops.

Though James traveled into the desert, as North did, he eventually was stationed in Alshawayr, which was two miles from Dhahran. From there he traveled to various points, picking up and delivering laundry and setting up and maintaining shower installations.

"We were working 15 to 18 hours a day."

James said that along with the specific duties of laundry and shower maintenance, the unit was required to do guard duty and "the younger fellas" had to pull k.p. (kitchen patrol) duty.

"The Iraqis were sending the Scud Missiles back into the Saudi interior. They were aiming at the support unit and equipment stockpiles."

"You could actually see them streaking across the sky and the light from the Patriot as it crossed to make contact, making a flash and a boom."

"We were six and a half miles away from where the soldiers were killed and it sounded like it was outside of your back door."

"They (the Scuds) were about 45-feet long and were armed with a very dangerous warhead. You never knew if that warhead would contain chemicals."

"We were all afraid they would use gas. We practiced getting into our gas mask and chemical suit until we had it down pat. It was not a happy sight."

James said he personally felt the war ended too early.

"I think we should have gone into Iraq to make sure their stockpile of weapons was diminished. We wouldn't be having the problems we have now."

"I understand the president's directive to recover Kuwait, but it's almost like getting the job done halfway."

James commented that he had little contact with the native people while in the Middle East, because of the nature of his job and because contact was discouraged.

"From what I saw, they are a different people. The Saudis are very religious and their religion flows over into their politics."

"They don't value cleanliness as we do. If an animal is killed on the road they just leave it there. If a car is wrecked, they leave that too. They don't care if it rusts and rots where it sits. The flies are in the multibillions, but they don't even look at them."

James said that while in Kuwait, though he had little opportunity to meet the people, he did notice a difference in that women were driving cars.

"They can't do that in Saudi; it's against the law."

"In Saudi, the men treat their sons better than their daughters. The entire area lives within rules of strict social contact."

"The king ordered limited contact with us. Maybe they were afraid our ways would rub off. They are culturally different."

Coming home was an emotional experience for James, who commented, "Lord, the tears. I couldn't believe how happy I felt coming home. The people coming out like that was really special."

James said he and the other men appreciated the parades and welcomes home, but the people of this community unknowingly provided something even more special by their continuous support while the unit was still over seas.

"The people were our third layer of defense. The support, the letters, the pictures of the flag waving and yellow ribbons everywhere would pick up your spirits."

"When you are 8,000 miles from home and you hear and feel such terrific support, you don't feel you are by yourself. The third arm of our defense were the people back home."

James, looking much trimmer than that day in November when he left with the rest of the county's best, is now ready to start the new school year.

That same energy which went into upholding a duty to his country will now go into a responsibility to the students and faculty of Bay High School.

"With the state budget cuts, it will be difficult, especially if this continues into the future. But I'm ready to get back to the job at hand."

Gaming

Nourse said, "I don't think the (Mississippi Gaming Control) Act provided for any limitations of that sort, so we didn't put in any."

"We tried to limit our regulations to those areas covered by the Act."

Gambling operators and gambling proponents throughout Hancock County and the rest of the state have expressed their wishes to see gaming regulations adopted so the Gaming Commission could start issuing gaming operation licenses. Nourse said those licenses will begin being issued after the commission gives its final approval of the regulations.

He said two companies that plan gambling facilities in Hancock County have applied for their licenses: Casino Enterprises Inc., operating as Bayou Caddy Inc. in Mississippi, which is clearing land for a facility at Bayou Cadet; and Mardi Gras Casino Corp., which is proposing a facility at the foot of the Hwy. 90 Bay bridge.

Nourse, who worked almost two decades in the gaming industry in Nevada, stressed that he is pleased with the regulations set forth.

"My opinion is that they are comprehensive, sophisticated and stringent, and will regulate operators and activities very tightly."

"They are good regulations, very good regulations."

A copy of the regulations is available for review at Bay St. Louis City Hall.

St. Clare teachers start year-long study

Teachers and administrators at St. Clare School will engage in a year-long study designed to improve their professional skills during the 1991-92 school year.

Principal Sr. M. Jane Bircher said, "The entire staff will participate in sessions throughout the year that involve both private study and group forums in order to stay abreast of the professional methods, techniques and skills which enhance student success in the classroom and the school."

The training program, called "The Master Teacher," is used by educators in more than 20 countries.

This fall, teachers will study results-oriented teaching techniques, professionalism, ethics, discipline, motivation and climate along with other subjects.

In addition, those who wish to do so may enroll in a distance-learning course based on The Master Teacher and selected other writings and complete required course work in order to receive three semester hours of graduate credit.

The course is offered in conjunction with an accredited state university and incorporates activities designed to enhance teachers' professional growth in the classroom.

Sr. Jane said, "The world is changing. The demands in business, industry, government and the professions are increasing. Therefore, our students must gain a higher level of achievement."

"We realize that in order for this to happen we must do a better job of teaching. That's why we are engaging in weekly training designed to improve our competency. We believe our students will be the beneficiaries of our extra effort."

WARNING! WARNING! BE ON THE LOOK OUT...

School's back in session and in the excitement of the new school year, many school-age children, especially the young ones, may forget to look both ways when crossing the street or exiting the school bus.

That leaves it up to you as a driver, to be extra careful around schoolyards, neighborhood play areas, and departing school buses.

So remember...when you see yellow, be sure to see red—as in red alert. Let's all slow down and give our children the chance they deserve.
